Concerns raised over OPP changes

See inside:

- Can community policing fill the gap? page 4
- Why it took so long for the news to become public, page 6

by Andrew Milne

A plan to reduce the Minden detachment of the OPP to a satellite of Coboconk will have a far greater impact on local police services than OPP management is implying, say critics.

They also say the decision to absorb Minden into the Coboconk detachment was actually made at least a month ago — and probably earlier — and that management kept the decision quiet until just prior to the move, possibly to avoid confrontation with the public. The same critics raised concerns over the burden community policing organizations will be shouldering after the move.

Retired Minden detective Al Bibby had harsh — even unprintable — words for statements by regional commander Bill Hutton that Minden's officers would not be substantially affected by the change.

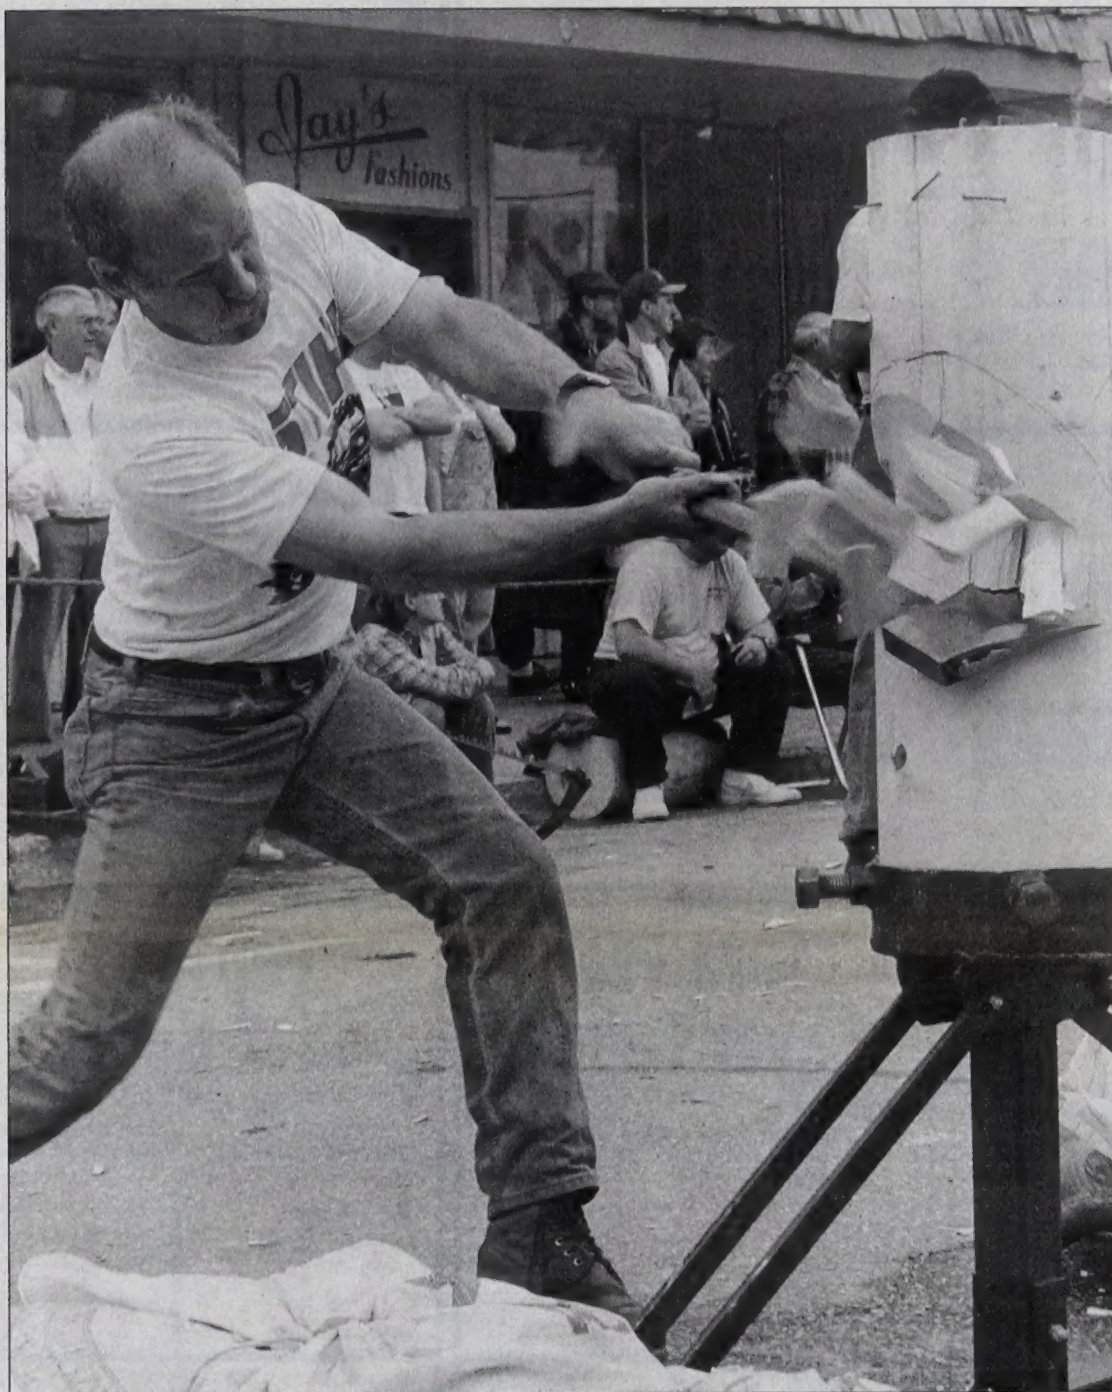

"The Haliburton public at large is not going to get the same protection that it used to," Bibby stated.

Bibby's concerns were echoed by a front line OPP officer who also spoke to The Times last week about the move. That officer, along with Bibby, said the changes could very well increase response time for some incidents, stretch policing resources even thinner in the Haliburton Highlands region, and endanger officer safety.

Bibby worked at the Minden detachment 20 years. He, along with the officer who came forward about the move, said the facilities being arranged in Minden to replace the current detachment headquarters will be little more than an area in which to store property and to pick up vehicles.

That, said Bibby, is going to make a big difference for officers operating in the Minden area. If Minden doesn't have the holding cell facilities it has now, officers will have to go to Coboconk or,

Kinmount committee hopeful in its search for a doctor

by Andrew Milne

Residents of the Kinmount area met last week to discuss the area's nagging doctor shortage.

Somerville Reeve John Huke told an assembled crowd of around 70 that though the difficulties are severe, he believes there is hope for improvement.

Said Huke, "It's not going to be an easy task, and it's not going to happen overnight. And we can't expect help from anyone else. Federal and provincial governments now seem to be saying health care is no longer their problem, and we're back where we were 30 or 40 years ago — back to volunteerism, and back to doing things for ourselves."

The meeting is one that will probably be described as typical, in histories yet to be written, of late 20th century rural Ontario. Kinmount, like many places in the province outside the major centres, woke up one morning last year to discover it had a problem on its hands — an aging population, and no doctors.

Kinmount had had doctors in the village fairly consistently from the late 1930s. For years these were the classic old-time, small town doctors, often working alone and from their houses. And up until as recently as a year and a half ago, the village was served by satellite clinics run by neighbouring Mind-en's Dr. Anthony Holliday-Rhodes.

Holliday-Rhodes, however, as have many practitioners working in rural Ontario in recent years, became increasingly burdened by a shortage of doctors and correspondingly heavier individual workload. Prior to his leaving Minden in April of 1995, he had closed his clinic in Kinmount, due, in part, to an inability to keep it staffed.

Now, Kinmount has no doctors whatsoever, and community leaders like health board member Ted Wilkes and Huke are attempting to step into the breach. They're advertising in medical magazines for doctors to come to Kin-

Manpower in the County will be very thin

Concern expressed that amalgamation of detachments will harm police services more likely, Lindsay to drop off suspects. That has the potential to take them off the road for hours.

Said Bibby, "They've moved to putting four officers on a shift, but that's the most they'll ever have. If anyone's off sick or training, they've got three. Then take two officers away to escort a prisoner to Lindsay for two hours, and that leaves one officer in the county to handle whatever might come up during those two hours."

The front line officer who came forward with his concerns says that scenario is hardly far-fetched. Shifts are already stretched so thin that he's been the only one in the county for hours at a time, and that was while Minden had a holding cell.

"I was all alone up here, holding the bag," he said. "Fortunately, nothing came up... But what if it had?"

He says an increasing reluctance to pay overtime and new shifts reduced to four policemen also have the potential of endangering officer safety even under the current conditions.

"By the book," he says, "they say one thing. They say you don't respond to a call without a partner. But we're stretched so thin there just aren't the people available, and you do things you shouldn't... Say you're alone at the office, the other two on duty are busy or just on their way back from something, with a mountain of paper to get through, you get a call. The call's just someone out alone who says they need a ride. You don't want to wake someone up. They're tired too."

"So you go out alone. You shouldn't, but you do. And it turns out yes, it's someone who just needs to be picked up, but she didn't tell you she's on the run from a husband or boyfriend who's been beating her up, and that he may be dangerous to you too."

The same officer — along with Bibby — was also critical of an argument from management that officers would not have to go to the detachment any more to pick up vehicles, but would be able to keep them at the community policing office from which they work. There are six vehicles, he says, for a detachment of more than 20 officers. They have to meet somewhere, and that's still going to have to be the detachment.

Besides taking the officers off the road, says Bibby, the lack of holding facilities in Minden will mean officers will be responsible for suspects longer.

"That's a liability," he says. "You want to get them off your hands as quickly as possible. That way there's less risk of confrontation, injury, escape, all that... The longer you have them, the greater the risk."

The officer who spoke to The Times last week also questions whether Minden will not, as management says, lose front line officers in the move. The full complement of 23 officers is already down because of secondments and retirements, he says.

'There will be no one there'

Finally, says the front line officer, he wants one thing perfectly clear: with all clerical staff and the staff sergeant removed from Minden — either dismissed or moved to Coboconk — and management confirms this is the plan — the Minden office is hardly anything so significant as the term 'sub-detachment' might imply.

"There will be no one there," he says. "It's just a place where we can store vehicles and property, and maybe get a coffee. 'Nothing more.'"

Staff sergeant Andy Millar of the Coboconk detachment — now also in charge of Minden, since it has been absorbed into Coboconk, confirms that he doesn't expect there will be any staff at the Minden office. All positions will be moved to Coboconk, including his own.

Millar had been at a meeting in Haliburton at which many of Bibby's and the officer's questions had been raised the night before speaking to The Times last week. He says he understands and shares many of those concerns. But he believes the OPP is going to do what it can to address them.

First, he says, there shouldn't be so much use of the holding cells anyway. "We have a holding cell at Coboconk," he says, "and it just isn't used that much."

Second, he says, he will insist that Minden have a holding room — a secure room with thick plywood walls, mesh on the windows, a solid core door and an observation window in the door — which he feels is adequate for most situations.

"Minden will have such a facility," he says. "That's the least we will accept."

The current Minden detachment has two cells.

Third, he says, he expects that in the future, officers will not have to return to the detachment as much as they do now.

Incident reports, he says, can be filed by computer, and that can be done from the cars.

Fourth, he says, the detachment will be putting a patrol car at the Haliburton community police office, on a trial basis, reducing the necessity for officers there, at least, to report to Minden or Coboconk.

Finally, he says, he has been assured that the retired and seconded officers will be replaced, bringing the detachment back to strength.

Bibby responds, however, that those responses don't resolve all the problems.

"The holding cells," he says, "are used. They were certainly used when I was there. And even when they aren't, having them is like having a spare tire. You don't need it until you need it, but when you need it, you really need it. You don't even need it for long — you've got to get the suspect in court within 24 hours anyway — but you need it."

"If you've apprehended someone involved in criminal activity, and you've still got investigation work to do — maybe even someone else out there you haven't apprehended yet, you need somewhere to put them, and you don't need that extra 45 minutes' travel time at a time like that. You want to put them in the room, get a guard to look after them, and get back out there."

As to people doing their work from their cars, he says, he's sure that's possible to a degree. But some things will require that officers return to the detachment, and that's going to mean a trip to Coboconk.

"There are police forces that have computers in their cars now, and that work this way," he says. "But they still have to go back to the office. There are things you can't do on the computer, files that aren't going to be on the computer."

The problem, really, says Bibby, as far as he's concerned, is twofold: first, he says, some of the management of the OPP are out of touch with the realities of work in the field. Second, the OPP is not thinking in terms of the importance of people to police work.

"It's always been like this," he says. "And I guess I have my biases, and I don't want to be unfair. But a lot of the force's management are people who really haven't spent a lot of time on the front lines, and really don't know how things work. They sit there and say well, we should be able to do this; this is how it should work. But they don't know."

"I've always said, that policing is people... I think they've forgotten that. They talk about community policing, and bringing police closer to the people, but that's not what they're doing. They're really moving farther away."

Staff Sergeant Andy Millar

Officers express concerns

Can community policing fill the gap?

by Andrew Milne

The trend towards community policing, though promising, may have some severe drawbacks as well.

In the wake of the announcement of the merging of the Minden and Cobocok detachments of the OPP, critics of the reorganization and members of community policing offices (CPOs) informed The Times last week of a number of concerns related to the operation of CPOs in an era of OPP downsizing.

The Times published comments by OPP regional superintendent Bill Hutton last week to the effect that the reorganization by the OPP would be mitigated by and complementary to moves towards increased reliance on community policing.

Critics and CPO staff responded:

- that training of staff at CPOs is extremely limited, and in cases, nonexistent,

- that security and defensive measures at CPOs do not compare with those of a police detachment, and that this may leave staff open to injury,

- that members of CPOs have risked activities better performed by front line officers, such as the pursuit of suspects, and

- that arrests in which members of CPOs participate may reduce the chances of charges being laid or convictions being made in criminal cases.

Said former OPP detective Al Bibby, a critic of the reorganization, "I don't want anyone to get the wrong impression here. The volunteers who get involved are often wonderful people. I've always said people are the key to police work... It's all a matter of how it's done."

Ideally, says Bibby, and this is something OPP supporters of community policing also say, CPO volunteers should be no more than extra eyes and ears for the police. They should not do more than this, nor risk more than this, nor should they be expected to do so.

The reality however, say Bibby and an OPP officer involved in community police work now, is that the volunteers are doing more than this. And this is opening them up to dangers they shouldn't be expected to face.

"I admire the people who get involved in this work," says Bibby. "I don't want to insult anyone. But people seem to get this attitude, and they do things they shouldn't do... And when it comes to crime and the criminal element, you need a professional to handle it. This is not cops and robbers. This is not television. This is real life. And people can get hurt."

Bibby is also concerned by security at the CPOs. Detachments, he says, are organized to protect the officers inside. There's safety glass, and officers are trained to defuse situations to avert injury. This isn't the case with CPOs.

"I walked into the Haliburton [CPO] the other day," he says, "and there was one person in there. Only one. They were alone. That shouldn't happen."

"I can remember occasions when people came into the detachment looking for a confrontation, and some of them were armed... You'd be amazed what will get people angry enough to do that. A parking violation can do that with some people... We're trained, as professionals, to defuse that kind of situation. But what if people go looking for that, and they go looking for that at the community station? The volunteers aren't trained to handle that."

A volunteer who called The Times last week expressed similar concerns.

"I'm not trained," he said. "I don't even know first aid, for heaven's sake... They've got us on patrol at community events, and I don't even know what to do in case of a heart attack."

Bibby also says there can be problems when members of CPOs get involved in arrests. Trained officers, he says, are permitted to operate on the grounds of probable cause and reasonable suspicion, and can make arrests when they haven't actually seen a crime committed, on the basis that they have reasonable grounds to arrest a given suspect.

Persons making citizen's arrests, by contrast, have actually to see the crime in progress. If they don't, he says, and proceed to apprehend a suspect anyway, the whole case can be thrown out because of inadmissible evidence.

The central issue, says an officer involved in community policing who spoke to The Times last week, is that the force is spread too thin, and that CPOs can't entirely make up for that. They are vital assistance — extra eyes and ears — in an era in which the force is spread thin. But, he says, they can't make up for the lack of professional personnel on duty.

"You need professionals for some things," he says. "It's that simple. And we don't have enough."

Reverend Peter Walford-Davis is the President of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada

Local minister elected United Church Conference president

Reverend Peter Walford-Davis has been elected to a position of prominence in the United Church of Canada. Walford-Davis was nominated several weeks ago for president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, by the Lindsay Presbytery. The Lindsay Presbytery is one of seven in the Bay of Quinte Conference. There are 13 Conferences across the province.

Walford-Davis was one of two nominees for the one-year presidential term. An election was held during the Celebration of Life at the Bridge Street United Church in Belleville on May 31.

"It's quite an honour," Walford-Davis said. "I'm praying that I can meet the challenges of that office."

He added that it is quite humbling to know that he is trusted to carry out the duties of the office.

After his nomination, Walford-Davis says he spoke with the people of his congregations in Minden, Carnarvon and Maple Lake.

"I received their blessings," he said. "They know that I will be away quite a bit of the time."

He added that although he will be asked to preach at many functions outside of this area, he doesn't expect to be away from his own churches on very many Sundays.

"It's something I felt led to do," he said.

As president of the conference, it will be his job to offer support and encouragement to clergy as well as lay people throughout the Bay of Quinte Conference. He expects to discuss religious and social issues during regular meetings with the conference executive. Special dedications within the conference and sermons at various churches will also be on Walford-Davis' agenda for the next 12 months.

Kinmount Canoe Day

Politicians go looking for votes in boats

The winners of the various canoe events held during the day include:

TVO at ASES

A television crew from TV Ontario set up shop at Archie Stouffer Elementary School last Friday (June 7) to film a segment on teacher Helen Newton and her grade 3 class. The film will be shown during the provincial awards ceremony when the local teacher will be honoured as one of the outstanding teachers in the province. The award, presented by TVO, was announced two weeks ago. It is still not known whether the segment will be seen on air. It is possible that one of TV Ontario's programs may air it later this year. Present for the filming were field producer Kim Benoit, camera technician Mario Resnick and sound technician Horst Mueller.

Amalgamation decision may have been made in April

by Andrew Milne

The OPP may have made the decision to reduce the Minden detachment to a satellite of Cobocok more than a month ago, The Times has been told.

OPP management had been telling county representatives and detachment staff members as recently as the week of June 3 that the decision was not yet final.

County council's liaison with the OPP, Lutterworth Reeve Jim McMahon, said last week he was not convinced the OPP had been dealing with the county in good faith.

Said McMahon, "I believed they were at first. I'm not so sure now."

The Times was approached by a number of people with concerns, which relates to internal OPP memos which seem to confirm that the force knew Minden would be the satellite at least as early as April 29.

The April 29 memo, which concerns the allocation of computer equipment, clearly states equipment would be allocated to Cobocok as the detachment, and Minden as the satellite.

The memo only seems to confirm

Stats Canada employees were working on the holiday weekend

Last week in our article on the annual meeting of the Haliburton County Home Support Services we reported that the gathering was addressed by members of the OPP who offered warnings about phone fraud. Constable Ron Buchanan told the meeting that some people had reported receiving a phone call on Saturday of the holiday weekend from an individual claiming to be working for Statistics Canada. "Like anybody in the government is going to be working on the Saturday of the long weekend," he was quoted as saying.

Well, it turns out Statistics Canada employees were working that weekend. According to a spokesman, Eileen Foley, the federal government agency had employees following up the census that was taken earlier in the month. "Yes, that was us, and we were working on the weekend, trying to finish off the census," she said. Foley did note however that Statistics Canada has no interest in individuals' personal banking information, account numbers, credit card numbers or such information. She suggested that if a caller identifies himself as an representative for Statistics Canada, and the information being requested is more than the individual wishes to provide, the homeowner should ask for the name and phone number of a supervisor, so the legitimacy of the call can be verified.

The thin blue line

While the almagamation of the Minden detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police with the Coboconk office may be passed off as simply an administrative move designed to save some money, we must agree with the assessment of several members of the force, past and present, who have spoken out on the matter. The downgrading of the Haliburton County detachment will have far-reaching implications.

Naturally, there is concern for the loss of the income represented by the administrative positions that will be cut at the local office. Haliburton County already has one of the highest unemployment rates in the province and these latest reductions will only aggravate an already troubled economy.

As well as the economic impact, we are concerned about the ability of the police to respond to incidents throughout this rural region. For years, concerns have been expressed about the ability of the 25 man detachment to effectively patrol an area as large as Haliburton County. This thin line of protection and response will be stretched even tighter with the latest move.

Relocating the detachment headquarters to Coboconk likely will result, over time, in new officers choosing to live close to the detachment headquarters, further aggravating the economic drain. More crucial, however, is the distinct disadvantage to these officers who will not reside in the community they serve. They will lose that personal touch that can make their jobs much easier and improve the service they provide to the community. That is not to say that those who will be patrolling the county will not be doing so diligently. They will, however, lack the empathy and special rapport, so valuable in police efforts, that comes with being full-time residents of the area.

It is time for the provincial government to take a long hard look at what its policies are doing and realize the irreparable harm they are causing to the fabric of rural Ontario.

Hats off

A quick doff of the derby, or should we say hard hat, to the organizers of Minden's Fourth Annual Timberfest. What a great day of activities, competition and excitement for the community to host. The timber sport festival is a real feather in the community's cap and the good news is, plans are already underway for next year's event. Congratulations to everyone involved for a job well done!

A warning: watch your purses

Dear Editor:

Recently, a terrible situation arose in Minden... my Mother had her purse stolen at the Minden Post Office. I've always thought that being of the old school had made her over-protective, always holding on to her purse for dear life. On this ill-fated day, she placed her purse on the counter in the post office and turned to look at a flyer. In that few seconds, her purse vanished. Panic stricken, she ran inside to the counter and asked if anyone had turned it in. Unfortunately not! Feeling very frightened and naked, she rushed to the police station in town. Thankfully, Constable Ron Buchanan calmed her down and accompanied her to the bank to cancel her credit cards and bank cards.

The unfortunate part of this whole story is that she is a senior citizen who relies on a monthly pension to survive. My mom had just returned from the bank and taken out her money for the month. After this theft, she was left with nothing. This was just the beginning of what has turned out to be an expensive and frustrating situation with many long distance calls and trips to Lindsay and Peterborough to replace cards and help renew her identity papers.

Thinking back, did the criminal stalk this unsuspecting senior citizen from the bank to the post office waiting for the perfect moment to attack? We cannot ignore the fact that living in a small community will not prevent you from becoming the next victim. Please ladies, use this as a warning: never to take your eyes off your purse, and don't (as many people do) leave it in your car while you run into the store for a second. And, sit down today to make a list of all your credit cards and account numbers to keep in a safe place in case you become prey.

Thank you to all my Mom's great friends from the Minden Line Dancing and the Minden Legion who helped so much with their generous donations, and to Constable Ron Buchanan for being so caring and going beyond the call of duty.

A caring daughter,

Former OPP officer says the community is being....

'Conned, shafted, deceived, deluded and seduced'

Editor:

Haliburton County, wake up! Contact all your municipal, provincial and federal representatives. Cottagers: remember you have home and cottage representatives. You and our representatives were conned, shafted, deceived, deluded and seduced when the Minden O.P.P. detachment was downgraded to a satellite of the Coboconk detachment.

The O.P.P. Organizational Project was initiated in October 1993. The new O.P.P. structure was approved by the Commissioners' Committee in December 1995, a two and a half year

Taxpayer suicide

Editor:

Further to Chris Lynd's letter in the June 3 edition of The Times, I was talking to a former Director of Education for Victoria County last week. He told me, since he retired, the pupil population has increased 60% while the Board Office Administration has increased 300%. Furthermore the Board employees now have big titles like "Superintendent of Student Whatever" rather than simply "Truant Officer" to go along with their huge salaries.

It would be a tax payer suicide to join Victoria.

Bill Valentine,

study now approved. So in 1996 the municipalities became involved in something already approved. Minden detachment staff and the Haliburton municipalities were kept in the dark.

It is now official, the Minden O.P.P. detachment is a satellite of the Coboconk detachment. This information came out in an obscure memo distributed throughout the district. No one told the Minden O.P.P. staff, and yet everyone was being told, 'we don't know what is happening'.

The staff members were being told this, while before their very eyes the detachment was being dismantled. Administration files were being transferred to the Coboconk detachment, more computer lines were being put into the Coboconk detachment. Somebody must have known, but, when being devious, you claim to know nothing.

Like every other provincial government agency, the O.P.P. has been told to cut costs. The administrators say we can do that by reorganization. This is their thinking in this area: Minden detachment is in a leased building. The Coboconk detachment is government owned. The logic is therefore, Coboconk detachment shall survive.

Policing is people, not buildings or locations. I still have not got over the time the O.P.P. relocated the detachment from Fenelon Falls, where the people are, to the present Highway 48 location near Coboconk, where the frogs and foxes are. But the administrators of that day would have told you that the property was government owned.

Local municipal representatives were being misinformed, but by whom? All of them were getting assurances, but from where?

Let me give you some history on the Minden O.P.P. Detachment. I speak with some authority, having been a member of that detachment for 20 years. In that time Minden has had more homicides than any other detachment in "number eight district", as it was known when I left in November 1994. Now it is a satellite detachment. Minden detachment has the dubious reputation of having had three officers murdered here. I don't think there is a detachment in the province with that reputation. Now it is a satellite detachment. On average there is at least one and a half break and enters each day of the year. The administrators who made the furtive decision must justify that deci-

I know from experience these people will muster the manpower of other lower administrators (not real police officers), who, with their administrative expertise, will come up with statistics, logistics etc., to show how right they are. I have read one report that indicates that Coboconk is the more centrally located for the combined area of Minden and Coboconk, an area from Fenelon Falls to Highway 60, almost at the west gate of Algonquin Park.

Give any junior high school student that problem suggesting Coboconk as the central location. In

Prenatal education

Editor:

I wish to thank you for your May 27, editorial concerning the Health Unit's re-focusing of its delivery of prenatal education.

While the Health Unit, like other publicly funded agencies is undergoing significant cuts to its provincial funding, the discontinuation of traditional prenatal classes has not been driven by funding cuts. Rather, there has been mounting evidence that provision of prenatal education through traditional classes is not addressing those underlying health issues that most influence the health of the mother and baby, nor does it reach those pregnant women and families that most require assistance. Those who attended prenatal classes are generally those individuals with greater education, greater personal support, and the ability to seek out and obtain required information.

Much of the content of traditional prenatal classes focused on labour and delivery. While this might have been necessary at one point, evidence has shown the health of the mother and infant are far more influenced by the mother's state of health prior to conception, the mother's use of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs prior to and during the pregnancy, and appropriate pre-conception genetic counselling. Unfortunately, as the focus of prenatal classes has changed away from labour and delivery, many pregnant women, being most focused on a

'My, you look particularly ugly in that suit'

Here is a fashion note you just might want to file away for future reference: a company in New York is about to market Ugly Undies.

They're not calling them that, of course. The official name is the Whistle-Stopper suit. It is a lightweight foam undergarment for women and it's designed to be worn under regular clothing. A woman wearing Whistle-Stoppers will appear to have a pot-belly, a flabby keister and matching thunder thighs.

According to a spokesman for the manufacturer, "Shapely attractive women who are tired of being harassed on the streets and in public transportation can wear the Whistle-Stopper suit to avoid stares, wolf whistles and sexist comments. We expect a high demand for it, especially in the big cities."

Well, I'm no fashion prognosticator, but I have a prediction for the manufacturers of the Whistle-Stopper suit:

Don't hold your breath.

I predict instant oblivion for the Whistle-Stopper suit. It is destined for the manufacturers' graveyard, fated to occupy a ploy between New Coke and the Edsel.

Die-hard feminists might hail the Whistle-Stopper suit as a brave step forward in the War Against Sexual Harassment--they might even buy themselves a couple of pairs. But they'll be the only ones who do.

Women, (and men too for that matter), are simply not interested in looking any dumpier or unattractive than they have to. It flies against human nature--hell, it flies against nature, period. The name of the biological game--no matter what the species--is attraction. Flowers smell the way they smell because that's what attracts bees, which distributes the pollen, which makes lots of new little flowers. Roosters strut and stallions snort; men wear after-shave and women dab on Chanel Number Nine. If attraction wasn't paramount, all peacocks could wear cammo jackets.

Ironically, the news stories about the Whistle-Stopper suits appeared in my

by Arthur Black

newspaper right beside another report saying that actress Jamie Lee Curtis had just taken out a million dollar insurance policy with Lloyd's of London:

For her legs.

That's not a first either. Actress Betty Grable insured her gams for $250,000 back in the 40's, Jayne Mansfield did the same thing to life-guard her twin treasurers.

And a while back, an actress by the name of Julie Bishop took out a $25,000 seven-year policy against gaining four inches around her hips or waist. It's a safe bet you'll never catch Julie or Betty or Jayne or Jamie Lee snuggling themselves into a pair of Whistle-Stoppers.

The American Poet Eric Jong once wrote the shortest of all poems on the human condition. It goes:

Men and women; women and men

It will never work.

Perhaps not--but that doesn't mean we'll never stop trying. That is what makes the world go 'round.

Science fiction writer Ray Bradbury said it even better:.

"There are two races of people--men and women--no matter what women's libbers would have you pretend. The male is motivated by toys and science because men are born with no purpose in the universe except to procreate. This a lot of time to kill beyond that. Women, however, are born with a centre. They can create the universe, mother it, teach it, nurture it. Men read science fiction to predict the future. Women don't need to read it. They are the future."

Amen Mister B.

I wonder if Ray Bradbury wears boxers or jockeys?

MUSIC BY THE WATER

The Minden Business Improvement Association (BIA) will be presenting a series of musical concerts this summer. The concerts will be staged Friday evenings on the portion of South Water Street between the post office and the bridge corner. This section will be closed to traffic for the three hour period. The concerts, known as Music by the Gull, will feature local musical groups and some surprise performers. BIA volunteer coordinator Russ Duhaime said, "We wanted to provide a venue for local groups, take advantage of the great location by the river, and encourage people to visit the downtown area Friday evenings." The first concert is June 28. They will be held every Friday (except the August holiday weekend) through to August 30. "We have an opportunity to showcase some of the great musical talent we have in our community," Duhaime commented, "and best of all, the concerts are free." The BIA hopes that people will find a comfortable spot on the riverbank, or arrive by boat, to take in an entertaining evening.

The Minden and District Lions Club has donated $1200 to assist in the cost of staging the concerts. Kicking off the concert series will be Gord Kidd and Kidd Kountry, June 28 at 7 p.m.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT MEETING

Minden and area merchants and community-minded citizens are reminded of the economic development meeting scheduled for this Wednesday at the Community Centre. The meeting grew out of an idea, from Linda Kernohan, that the community would benefit from a co-ordinated approach to economic development. With the assistance of the municipality and the Chamber of Commerce, she has been able to pull together a group to organize this meeting. While the business community is a natural for taking a lead in this effort, the community at large is also welcome to attend and contribute to the exchange of ideas. The meeting will get underway at 7 p.m. Bryan Brown, of the Haliburton County Development Corporation, will act as facilitator.

the present vernacular the student will say. "Get real." These administrators will not be present when the next major incident occurs. But rest assured these administrators will have a proper formulated answer. Being a satellite detachment, new officers will not settle here, but where the main detachment is located.

Minden is a satellite detachment, yet it has six community Police Services Offices funded by the municipalities. Cobocok has two and Lindsay four. Now, guess what? Those Community Police Services are going to be asked to fund the police computers in the offices at the municipalities' expense. This is your reward for your community involvement in community policing. I can see volunteers manning the offices. And no matter how community minded these volunteers are they are not professionals.

They could possibly misinform members of the public with devastating results, not to mention lawsuits with defence and pay out costs that would fund two detachments in Haliburton County.

I read the two articles in the June 3 issue of The Times:

• 'OPP officials guest speakers at HCHSS' Staff Superintendent Hutton is the O.P.P. Public Relations officer sent to pour oil on the water. This appears to have been done quite effectively. If, however, the front line officers were allowed to put their views to you, I know you would hear quite a different story.

• 'Minden OPP office now a satellite' reporter Andrew Milne covered the issue quite well. He used the term 'downgraded'. That is exactly what it is.

Haliburton County wake up! Milne is right when he quotes a detachment staff member, "Losing the detachment in Haliburton County, it seems to me, is a pretty major issue."

This is a major issue. People of Haliburton County make yourselves heard through your elected officials.

satisfactory end of the pregnancy and the birth of their expectant baby, became less interested. Those mothers who smoked or who wished to continue using alcohol during pregnancy had little interest to attend classes where they perceived themselves as being lectured to about the evils of tobacco and alcohol. Therefore those who most need to alter their behaviours in order to reduce their risk are least likely to attend.

It was for reasons of decreasing efficacy of traditional prenatal education rather than funding cuts that the decision was taken to replace the prenatal classes. The placing of appropriate and accurate information in local libraries by way of books and videos is but the Health Unit's first step at redirecting prenatal education to ensure that there is the greatest impact on improving the remaining small proportions of pregnancies that lead to low birth weight and damaged newborns. The Health Unit recognizes that reading materials and videos alone will not reach all those who need assistance. Unfortunately, individual counselling will also not reach all those needing assistance, as the counselling must be desired and agreed to by the pregnant woman, who often refuses such counselling, as is her right.

Over the next few months you will undoubtedly hear of Health Unit programming changes, which unlike the prenatal education change, will be driven by reduced provincial funding. Let me assure you that the Health Unit will be honest in indicating the reason for changes and if driven by a need to cut costs, will so indicate.

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the editorial of two weeks ago, in which we commented on the Health Unit's plan to drop prenatal classes, we neglected to mention that two nurses, Stephanie Kuno and Rosemary Shivji, are now providing these courses privately. It should also be noted that pre- and postnatal resources material is available at the Minden and Haliburton CHACE Resource Centres.

Rugby talents shine through in HHSS girls' first game

by Jerry Grozelle

There aren't many contact sports in which high school girls can participate. So, when Haliburton Highlands Secondary School teacher Stephanie Hagg offered the girls a rugby program she says the response was "overwhelming."

Hagg, who is new to HHSS as of last September, played Rugby in Peterborough herself and she decided to see if there was enough interest in the sport here to form a team. As it turns out, there are enough girls interested to form two teams.

A total of 42 girls from Grade 9 to OAC showed an interest and at an exhibition game last week, 30 HHSS girls were on hand to tangle with Bancroft.

"They did so well," Hagg enthused, "I couldn't be more pleased."

Hagg said the Bancroft team dominated the first half of the game, drawing on more experience than the Haliburton girls. But the momentum shifted to Haliburton in the second half.

Although no score was recorded, Hagg says the Bancroft girls built enough of a lead in the first half that she has no doubt the opposition won.

Even during that first game, Hagg was impressed with the instinctive abilities demonstrated by the Haliburton girls.

"They are a multi-talented group," she said. "They are learning quickly and they are very motivated. They are making my job very easy."

Hagg said the sport is a great opportunity for women to get involved in a contact sport.

"This is the first opportunity they've had and a lot of them have really excelled," Hagg said. "Jody Reid played a tremendous game, offensively and defensively. Alyna Reesor, who is one of the smallest girls on the team, was one of the hardest hitting tacklers, along with Britney Hewitt, Kim Bagshaw and Brandi Hewson."

Exhibition games will be the extent of the competition for this year, but Hagg is in the process of getting a spring league started for 1997.

Midget Royals undefeated in first six league games

Minden's representative in the midget division of the Victoria-Brock Baseball league boasts a near perfect record early in the hardball season. The Royals moved to 5-0-1 this past Wednesday night with a hard earned 10-8 win over a gritty Lindsay squad.

Royals' starting pitcher Matt Cheeseman was clipped for five runs in the first inning, but he settled down in the second, striking out two and picking off a runner at first base.

Reliever Darren Mills allowed three more runs, but struck out six over the next two and a third innings to earn the win. Rookie pitcher Rod Upton then cleaned up to pick up the save.

Scoring a pair of runs for Minden were Steve Ecclestone, Dwight Bryant, catcher Jamie Henderson and shortstop George Godfrey. Left fielder Chris Little and Cheeseman each scored once.

Four days earlier in Minden's home opener against Lindsay, the Royals fought back from a 3-1 deficit, picking up four runs in the final frame to win by a 5-3 margin.

Making his debut on the mound for the Royals, Upton replaced ailing starter Ryan Anderson and struck out eight of the 12 batters he faced in the final three frames.

On the final day of May, Minden visited Cambray and, once again, fought back from an early deficit. The Cambray squad led 7-2 after two innings when reliever Ryan Anderson took over the mound from shell-shocked Mills and struck out seven batters to earn the victory.

Helping the Minden cause were two grand slam home runs, one by catcher Jamie Henderson in the fourth inning and the other by Anderson in the fifth. The final score in Cambray was 14-7.

The lone tie of the young season was in Omemee on May 27. The always-tough Omemee crew scored once in the final inning to spoil another come-from-behind effort by the Royals. That game ended in a 9-9 draw.

The Royals will play host to Cambray on Sunday, June 16 and the following Sunday, Minden will be at home again, this time facing Omemee. Both games will get under way at noon.

Bantam Royals 2-2 in first four games

Minden's bantam Royals hardball team played host to Nestleton on Sunday, June 2. After an evenly matched and hard fought game, the Royals found themselves on the short end of a 3-1 score. The loss evened the team's record at two wins and two losses.

The Royals got off to a shaky start. The first Nestleton batter laid down a bunt. The ensuing throw to first base sailed high, allowing the runner to advance to second. The following batters picked up a single and a walk, so Minden pitcher Aaron Gibbons found himself with the bases loaded and none out. Gibbons rose to the challenge, striking out the next three in a row to get out of the jam unscathed.

Minden's only run came in the bottom of the first, with Michael Hamilton leading off with a single. After stealing second and third, Hamilton scored on a ground ball by Aidan McKnight.

Gibbons' impressive outing continued in the second frame as he struck out the three batters he faced.

Hamilton came on to pitch the third inning, recording two pop outs and a strike out.

Going into the fourth frame, the Royals were still nursing a 1-0 lead. Unfortunately for the home side, two errors led to the loss. With Nestleton runners at second and third, a pick-off attempt at second base went wrong, allowing the runner at third to score. Moments later, again with runners at second and third, a misplayed ball at centre field allowed two more runs to score.

Paul Daniels took over on the mound for the fifth inning. He faced four batters, giving up only one hit.

The Royals went into the bottom of the fifth, and final, inning down two runs. A single by Nick Kulas was the only offense the Royals could generate against good Nestleton pitching.

SILVER MEDALISTS: Joan Mackenzie (left) and Marie Dennie of Minden teamed up to win the shuffleboard silver medal at the Muskoka-Haliburton Regional Seniors Games in Minden last week.

BRONZE MEDALISTS: Finishing third at the Muskoka-Haliburton Regional Seniors Games in Minden last week earned Hugh Allen and Jeanne Sears the bronze medal in the shuffleboard competition.

Secrecy affects morale

Staff kept in the dark about OPP changes

what office staff say they have suspected for months. Office staff told The Times last week that, though no one would confirm it directly nor say it was final, the flow of computer equipment to Coboconk, besides other paperwork which seemed to take for granted that Minden would be absorbed into the Coboconk detachment, all seemed to point quite explicitly in that direction.

Said one officer who spoke to The Times, "Minden doesn't even exist in the OPP computers any more. We're already treated as part of Coboconk there... And yet the brass were still saying it isn't final; we haven't decided yet."

Al Bibby, a retired Minden detective critical of the decision to absorb the Minden detachment into Coboconk, says he isn't surprised. The OPP's plan for reorganization was conducted between 1993 and the end of 1995, he says, and he wouldn't be surprised if the force had actually made up its mind then.

Says Bibby, "And that's what's killing the people at the Minden detachment. They didn't know. They weren't told... I talk to these people. They come by sometimes for help on cases, old stuff I'd worked on, and I know how they're doing. They feel they're becoming a lesser entity."

X-country skiers annual meeting this Tuesday

It may seem a bit early to be thinking about cross country skiing, but the Haliburton Highlands Nordic Trails Association is urging skiers to attend the association's annual meeting tomorrow (June 11) at the Wigamog Inn.

"There are many critical issues to be sorted out, centred on how best to administer the established trail network," said association representative Peter Brogden. "There are several distinct types of trail users and the management of the network must be adapted to suit their needs."

Brogden added that a series of skiing and social events must be planned for next winter. He urges anyone with an interest in Nordic skiing to attend the annual meeting to offer input and share ideas.

Another Ski Club meeting will probably be held in July to confirm some of the events, Brogden said.

McMahon says this is an issue for a number of reasons — and particularly for the reason that the public was neither informed nor consulted about the decision. Though the solicitor-general's office seems to be under the impression there was a public meeting in Lindsay in February, he says, that meeting didn't have a single representative from Haliburton County present, with the exception of a few officers from the Minden detachment.

"There wasn't anyone from county council there," says McMahon, "That's for sure."

Staff Sergeant Andy Millar, in charge of the amalgamated detachment, confirms that morale is low. And, he says, he knows there is an atmosphere of suspicion over when the decision was made, and why people weren't being told.

"People have come to me and asked me whether I knew this," he says. "I didn't know any more than I was telling, and that's what everyone else here knew."

Millar says however that yes, it seemed pretty clear to him as well what decision had been made.

Asked, he says his guess is that the management wanted to keep the options open. In other places, like Apsley, where similar moves have been made, there was some outcry after the announcement of the decision, and the decision had to be reversed.

"I think they wanted to keep their options open," said Millar. "They didn't want to get into another situation where they did one thing, then were forced to change their minds, and wound up looking weak... But they're getting down to where they have to move on this."

Hutton was not reached for comment until late last week, and has not yet responded.

First sessionASES School Council meets

by Andrew Milne

The Archie Stouffer Elementary School (ASES) school council met for the first time last week.

School councils are an initiative started by former Minister of Education David Cooke, meant to improve community involvement in schools, and to involve parents and the community at large in decision making. The meeting was June 5.

Interim chair Mary McKelvey was positive about the way the meeting went, and said she felt the council had worked well together.

Said McKelvey, "I'm happy with it. It seems like a good gathering of people from the community."

The council appointed an interim chair and secretary, and discussed the appointment of community representatives to the council. Legislation calls for the appointment of two such representatives. The ASES council opted to select representatives from the seniors community and the business community.

Members of the Archie Stouffer Elementary School school council held their first session Wednesday in the school library. The council includes: Principal Peter Forgrave, student representative (and Prime Minister of the students' council) Ryan Sisson, non teaching staff representative Carol Cox, teacher representative Eric Thompson, parent representatives Maureen Bennett, Mary McKelvey, Kirsty Reynolds, Ron Callaghan, Rob Orlowski, Skip Ray and Jackie Salerno-Ruddy.

Anthony vanLieshout and son Justin present CHACE director Dianne Loucks with a cheque for $221.60. The amount represents the proceeds from a benefit screening of the film Mrs. Winterbourne, recently held in Haliburton. Justin appeared in the movie as lead Ricki Lake's infant son. CHACE runs programs supporting children and their families, including resource and day care centres in Minden and Haliburton.

Kinmount is looking for doctors too

mount, working on plans for a clinic in the lower level of the municipal building, and holding meetings like the one last week.

The goal is to mobilize their community to help solve the problem. The Minden hospital situation, says Wilkes, seems to have become a little more stable than it was, giving Kinmount a slightly better chance at attracting physicians who might enjoy working in the tiny centre, since doctors often want a hospital available in areas in which they work.

The Kinmount committee is up against stiff competition, and long odds. Doctors in recent years have tended to settle in urban centres, and often require special inducements to do otherwise. More remote communities in the far north, with often even more pressing health care needs, offer packages that can be very difficult to rival — contracts with $350,000 signing bonuses, free housing and/or clinic office space, even generous education, training and retirement packages. Health care in those communities, due to their remote nature, is generally also more heavily subsidized by the government.

Kinmount, on the other hand, like neighbouring Minden, which is also trying very hard to bring doctors back into the community, has to struggle against the fact that there are no doctors in the community at the moment. This factor makes starting any practice a rough road for an individual doctor. He or she could feel isolated with no colleague to call on for help or advice.

Furthermore, though government subsidies for such 'underserved' areas outside Northern Ontario do exist, they're fairly lean — $15,000 over four years, to be paid tax free to each of up to two doctors, in Kinmount's case — available once Kinmount has demonstrated for at least a year that it's serious about making efforts to attract doctors.

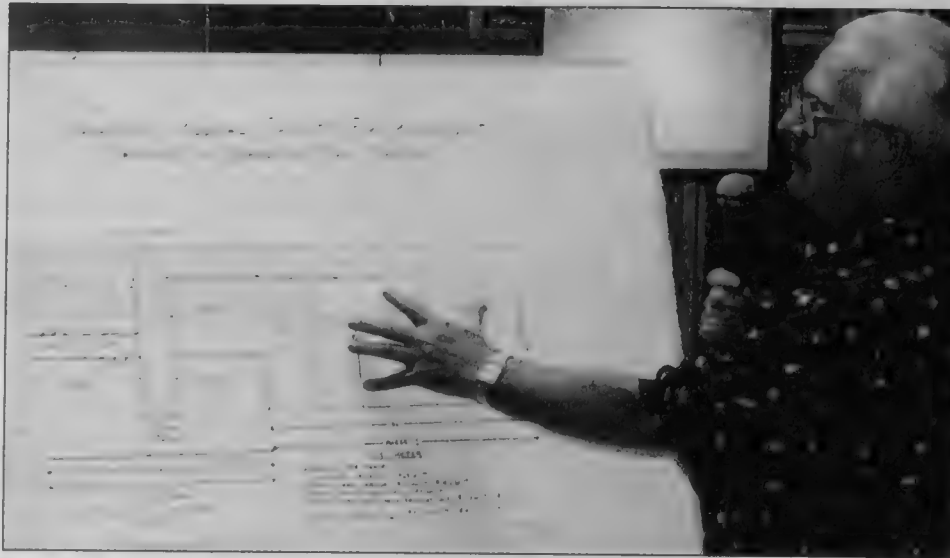

"The program has been in place for some years now," says Wilkes, "obviously, $15,000 just doesn't mean that much to doctors today. The government says it's working on revamping the program for Northern Ontario, but that's not going to apply to us... They've also said to our delegations that they know we have a problem here too, but it's unlikely they're going to be doing anything about that next week."

For those reasons, at the meeting last week, Wilkes and other members of the panel described Kinmount as the 'twilight zone' of health care.

"We're caught between the Greater Toronto Area and Northern Ontario — as far as getting help from the government is concerned. We're not quite remote enough that we're a priority for them."

Huke and Wilkes want to change that. They urge area residents to write to their MPPs and MPs.

As importantly, they say, the community has to be ready to assist doctors who want to move to the area, with funds to organize and construct a clinic from which the doctors could work. Doctors, experience tells them, don't want to be bothered with all the details of running a clinic. They want an office to work in, a secretary and other support staff already available. The physicians would likely be glad to provide funds for a clinic's operation out of their billings, but the organizing is best done before they arrive.

Somerville Reeve John Huke explains to the audience in Kinmount how the lower level of the municipal office could be configured to accommodate a doctor's office.

With that thought in mind, Huke presented plans at the meeting for a community clinic to be built in the basement of the Somerville Township office, but the priority at this stage, they say, is not yet the clinic. It's getting the doctors.

"We don't need your money for the clinic yet," said Wilkes. "We've got to get to work on attracting some interest from doctors first. But we do have to be ready, so if doctors do show interest we can say yes, this is where you can work, and it can be ready for you."

Foster Loucks, director of the newly formed Haliburton Highlands Health Services Board (HHHS), was also present to speak. The HHHS was recently incorporated to coordinate and upgrade the health services in Haliburton County and the surrounding region — specifically the catchment areas of Minden and Haliburton hospitals. That, says Loucks, might well prove a positive move for Kinmount and other communities like it having difficulty with their medical services.

Says Loucks, "We had developed in this area over the years a very fragmented system... The idea [in creating the HHHS] is to build a model in which one organization has responsibility for the health care facilities in the area... Doctors will, I think, be more attracted to our area if we have good facilities from which they can practice, and I'm here to tell you the plan is to have a set of institutions that I think will be attractive to doctors."

Deputy-reeve Peter Franzen of Galway-Cavendish was also present to answer questions.

May weather

by Phil Graham

	C	F
Average high	18.3	65.0
Average low	2.7	36.8
Average for the month	10.5	51.0
Average for last May	11.1	52.0
Highest temperature May 19	30.0	86.0
Lowest temperature May 3	-4.0	24.8
Rainfall	71.0 mm	2.7 in
Snowfall	0
Total precipitation	71.0 mm	2.7 in
Total precipitation for last May	75.8 mm	2.9 in
Total days with rain or snow	9
Total days with mostly sunshine	19
Days with thunderstorms	2

May was fairly pleasant and very much like last May, even to the late season conditions, only one degree (F) difference in average temperature and 2/10 of an inch rainfall difference.

Even with those similarities we had some extreme conditions. On May 13 we had snow flurries, six days later we had the highest temperature of the month, 86 degrees (F). Severe thunderstorms on May 19 gave us "free" fireworks for Victoria Day Holiday, but also did considerable damage.

Now that we are into June, keep in mind the possibility of tornadoes. These storms are getting more common in this part of Ontario.

Trivia: The earth's eight warmest years since 1881 have been 1981, 1983, 1987, 1988, 1989, 1990, 1991 and 1994; 1994 was the third warmest ever recorded.

Residents of Staانworth Court are starting to believe that spring is here - gardeners are planting their vegetables in the "back 10" and the weeding will soon be underway.

The cancelling of the lawn bowling left our active athletes, Maxine Cross, Katie Parker, and Fred Knight with time on their hands - although Fred quickly took up the slack by rushing on to the golf course and is looking forward to a "swinging" summer.

Maxine was the local winner of the ladies 5-pin bowling games and won a trip to Brampton to take part in the Senior's tournament. She enjoyed the trip,

* St. Paul's - euchre on Mondays at entertainment and the dinner but was a bit disappointed at not continuing her winning ways and coming back number one.

We noted a note in our paper that "Our Brad" had won the customer service award a week or two ago. We give him stars for his dart playing. His grandmother Audrey Trumbull tries hard to outscore him and finally had an outstanding count only to discover she had over-shot the needed amount and couldn't count it!

With tourist season arriving, some residents are looking forward to family visits and cottage outings. Welcome Summer!

1:30 p.m. Marie Dennie, last week, had the most lone hands while Jeanne Sears and Marg McAfee the high score. Low score went to Jessie Preston. The 50-50 draw was won by Fern Donnelley.

* Club 35 also meets on Mondays for euchre at 7:30 p.m. Mary Reesor won the most lone hands last week while Dolly Kelly and Norm Lee captured the high scores. Jeanne Penick won the 50/50 draw. Partners are not required here. Their next wheels-to-meals dinner is on Tuesday, June 18 at noon.

* Contract Bridge on Tuesdays at 1 p.m. in the Stanhope Library. Last week, Beth (not Bess - sorry) Crutchley came in first, Helen Heald, second and Betty Culley, third. A small slam was bid and made by Helen and Fred Heald. Partners not required.

* Seniors bid euchre on Tuesdays at 1:30 p.m. in the Minden Legion. Last week, Jack Chilton, Shirley Elcome and Judy Girling held the high scores while Milton Fletcher held the hidden score. Moonshots to Pat Rousselle and Howard Smith.

* On Tuesday, May 28, the last seasonal euchre game in Gelert was played. Betty Curry captured lone hand; Betty Hicks and George Bartley high score; Audrey Vick and Earl Schellenberg low score. Meet again in Gelert September 17 at 7:30 p.m.

* On Thursdays at 7:15 p.m., euchre is played in the Minden Legion. On May 30, there was a whopping number of winners, almost too many to mention. Most lone hands by Verna McDonald and Murray MacKinnon; high score by Bill Mitchell and Rhoda Woolner and, guess what, the low man score was won by Betty Harper.

* Bid euchre is played every Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Stanhope Firefighters Hall. Last week, Jean Scadden had the top score with 339, followed by Garth Windsor-286, Brian Henderson-270 and Gala Stamp-254. Moonshots to Edith Burch and Betty Campbell.

Skin Care and The Sun Scare

Tanning is your skin's natural response to ultraviolet light. When you get a sunburn, your skin is actually damaged by too much exposure. This can lead to cancer over time, but what many people don't realize is that cumulative exposure to UV rays - even when you don't burn - can also cause cancer.

Skin cancer is the result of both the total amount of UV light received over the years, and the severity and number of sunburns.

Parents take note: Experts estimate that 80% of a person's life-time total of exposure to the sun comes before the age of 18, so it's especially important that your kids wear enough sunblock. Young children particularly should always wear sunhats and protective clothing as well.
